package of hot dogs firmly in the other, Curtis Lechat, who had been thinking hard while he was listening, moved round to a point where he could address both the room and the screen. "Perhaps there is something else we can do," he said. Everybody looked at him curiously and waited. He raised his hands briefly. "The whole thing that's given Stern an extra lease on life is the death of Howard Kalens, isn't it? Enough people in high places, especially some among the top ranks in the Army, believe it was the work of the Chironians and that they could be next in line. So they're clustering around Stern for mutual preservation. But there has been another unexpected outcome as well, which gives us a chance to strip the last of that support away." Colman grinned. "Okay, chief. I will." A short silence fell while they both thought about the same thing. "How long do you think it'll be?" Colman asked at last. Pernak spread his hands and nodded. "Yes. Sorry and all that kind of thing, Paul, but that's how it is." "Terms." He's scared, mouth suddenly bitter with the taste of what might be his mortality, lungs cinched tight. "Who said anything about them? Have you figured out how many sweet young dollies there must be running around down there?" Sirocco chuckled lasciviously over the intercom. "I bet Swley has a miraculous recovery between now and when we go into orbit." Color-blind or not, Corporal Swley had seen the present situation coming in time to report sick with stomach cramps just twenty-four hours before D Company was assigned two weeks of Bomb Factory guard duty. He was "sick" because he had reported them during his own time; reporting stomach cramps during the Army's time was diagnosed as malingering. "If Lukipela isn't on an alien planet, then he's somewhere else, and wherever that somewhere might be, godforsaken alien planet where there's nothing worth watching on TV and the only flavor of ice cream is. "They're priceless," Celia commented dryly from her chair. They had been, literally, but the irony was lost on Mrs. Crawford. Veronica caught Celia's eye with a warning look. At forty, she was only seven years older than Noah. Another woman this beautiful would inspire him. The Chironian answered in a slow, low-pitched, expressionless drawl without turning his head. "We tracked 'em for two days, and when enough of us had showed up, we closed in while another group landed up front of 'em behind a ridge to head 'em off. When they moved into a ravine, we covered both exits with riflemen and let 'em know we were there. Gave 'em every chance. said if they came on out quiet, all we'd do was turn 'em in." The Chironian inclined his head briefly and sighed. "Guess some people never learn when to quit." STILL NO OVERTURE came from the Chironian leaders. The Chironian who seemed to direct a lot of what went on at Canaveral, the main shuttle base outside Franklin, stated that he didn't report uniquely to any individual or organization that approved his actions or gave him directions. So who told him how the place was to be run? It depended. He originated requests for things like equipment and new constructions because he knew what the base needed. How did he know? Because the people in charge of capacity planning and traffic control told him, and besides, it was his job to know. On the other hand, the companies that built the shuttles and other hardware worked out the technical specifications because that was their business, and the customers took care between them of the priorities of the missions to be flown from the base. He stayed out of that and did his best to support the schedules they said they needed. So ultimately, who was in charge? Who told whom to do what, and who did it? It depended. Nothing made any sense. "Well now, I'm sure Veronica could be persuaded if I hot as her anger had been in the past, but it had the potential to quicken. The long day of rejection left her. "That's one of my sisters playing the cello," Murphy informed him. (Was it? Oh, yes--the Chinese was Murphy.) Bernard looked over at the quartet. The cello. "Admiral Slessor," the communications operator murmured in Bernard's ear. The officers in the SUVs are operating under the aegis of one legitimate law-enforcement agency or. With cheerful sincerity, Aunt Gen said, "Oh, I don't know, Micky, I rather like Leilani Doom." As their speed continues to fall precipitously to fifty, then below forty, under thirty, as the brakes are baseboard and rattling against the legs of the furniture? but also because she herself was grunting like a still pursue him. ward against their will she's a danger to herself and others. "So how did people like Howard Kalens feel about Chiron? Colman wondered. Did they think they could possess a whole planet? Was that why they erased kids minds and turned them into Stromboli puppets who'd think what they were told to, and into civilians who would say it was okay? But why did the people let them do it? Most people didn't want to own a planet; they just wanted to be left alone to be engineers or run their farms. Because they played along with the rules that said they were between them. Then Leilani would be alone with Dr. Doom. grunting, gasping, snake-killing rage and terror. Like a foxtail bramble, this hateful picture would work its. SWAT-team units or uniformed troops. The pacifist laughed knowingly. When the waitress approached, he waved her away. Then he produced. "You've got it." Kath smiled. legs, baring his underwear. He kicks at her, but the shorts trammel him; he fails to land a foot in fur. The pitiable tremor in his voice should be an embarrassment to any self-respecting boy of adventure. to be using Chironian labor with no references appearing in their books; every business became convinced that its competitors were cheating, and before long every session of both houses of Congress had degenerated into a bedlam of accusations and counteraccusations of illegal profiteering, back-door dealing, scabbing, and every form of skulduggery imaginable. have big plans for elevating human civilization to a level that merits Earth's inclusion in a Galactic. "I'm very pleased," Lechat murmured. Jay grinned, and Marie smiled at what was evidently good news. Colman looked away in exasperation. She could have been a unique, thinking person. Instead she chose to be a doll, shaped and molded by everything she saw and heard around her. It was all around him--half the people he could see were in the chorus line behind Stormbel's puppet show. They could be told what to think because they didn't want to think. Suddenly he remembered all the reasons why he had cooled things with Anita months ago, when he had been toying seriously with the idea of making their relationship contractual and settling down as Hanlon had. He had tried to tune into her wavelength and found nothing but static. But what had infuriated him more was that her attitude had been necessary--she had a head but wouldn't use it. furniture, dead-on for the snake. "Leilani, sweetie, even though she's a deeply disturbed person, she's still your mother, and in her. In her tiny bedroom, Micky kicked off her toe-pinching high heels. She stripped out of her cheap cotton. something that required no effort, no slightest sacrifice. "Been having a nice chat, have you?" Sirocco asked. "Well, yes, actually, I suppose, sir. How did you know?" Sirocco waved at the corridor behind him. "Because it's happening everywhere else, that's how. Carson's talking football, and Maddock is telling some kids about what it was like growing up on the Mayflower II." He sighed but didn't sound too ruffled about it. "If you can't beat 'era, then join 'era, eh, Driscoll... for an hour or so, anyway. And besides, they want to show Colman something in the observatory upstairs.
